

Small Highland Fights

Near Area Of Heavier Fight Monday

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. infantrymen tangled with North Vietnamese regulars in two small new fights today in the central highlands north of the battlefield on which U.S. air cavalrymen took heavy casualties Monday.

Units of the 25th Division skirmished with the North Vietnamese 12 miles southwest of the U.S. Special Forces camp at Plei Djeri and 13 miles northwest of the Green Beret camp. Three North Vietnamese were reported killed in the first clash. There was no word of casualties in the other.

A U.S. military spokesman said the North Vietnamese inflicted heavy casualties on a three-platoon force of about 105 men of the U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division in Monday's fighting 22 miles southwest of Plei Djeri.

The spokesman said one platoon — about 35 men — was overrun and took the brunt of the casualties. He would not comment on reports that there were only three survivors in the platoon. U.S. military officials consistently refuse to give specific casualty figures in any action on grounds of security.

The North Vietnamese killed several wounded Americans as they swept across the battlefield, the spokesman reported.

The cavalrymen reported killing 102 North Vietnamese with the aid of air strikes and artillery. The North Vietnamese force was estimated at a battalion of about 500 men in all, and the force that overran the cavalry platoon was reported to be 150 to 200 men.

U.S. B52 bombers roared over the Plei Djeri area today in support of the 25th and 1st Cavalry divisions and dropped their bombs on a North Vietnamese staging area 17 miles west of the Special Forces camp.

Only small, scattered ground action was reported elsewhere in Viet Nam.

Over North Viet Nam, the bad flying weather of the past two weeks persisted and U.S. pilots flew only 41 missions Monday. They hit at storage areas, roads and truck parks, mostly in the southern panhandle.

40,000 Students 'Out'

Teachers' Strike Enters Its Second Straight Day

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP)—More than 40,000 public school pupils in Youngstown and nearby Hubbard were without classes again today as Ohio's first teacher strike entered its second day.

Teachers who are not members of the striking Youngstown and Hubbard locals of the American Federation of Teachers reported at the schools but school officials in both communities advised the pupils to stay at home.

School bus drivers and truck drivers who make deliveries to the schools continued to respect the striking teachers' picket lines at the 44 schools here and the four in Hubbard.

A bargaining session between the Youngstown Federation of Teachers and the City Board of Education ended at 3 a.m. today with no progress reported toward settling a collective bargaining dispute. No further meetings were scheduled today.

Negotiations broke down Monday between the Hubbard Federation of Teachers and the school board in that community. The federation is asking a wage increase for the teachers and recognition as bargaining agent.

The main issue in Youngstown is collective bargaining.

The boards of education in Youngstown and Hubbard now recognize the Youngstown and Hubbard education associations as bargaining agents.

The Youngstown board agreed Monday to a collective bargaining election on or before Dec.

What About The Ducks?

Note Surprise Suggestion -- Filling In Park Lagoon

By D. Kelly Scruton

What's going to happen to the ducks at the Liberty Park Lagoon? They are about to lose their home if a recommendation of Mayor Ralph Walker is fulfilled — filling up the lagoon for more picnic and parking area in Liberty Park. The surprise suggestion was made at the regular council meeting, Monday night.

During the council proceedings, a recommendation was read before the council for the city to seek a grant from the Federal Government for outdoor recreational improvements at Centennial Park. It would be in the form of matching funds, and will be made through Inter-Agency Commission for recreation and conservation, to the Department of Interior Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

The monies would be used to build a shelter house, park lighting, picnic areas, parking areas, and building of a "fishing" pond. The plans are now being drafted by the Park Board since a consultation with a representative from the State Department. The Council voted to go forward with the plan.

It was then that Mayor Walker told the Council, "It may

Agreement Claimed By Two Parties

BONN, Germany (AP) — Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin said today that his Social Democrat party is completely in agreement with the Free Democrats on foreign and defense policy and working together for reuniting Germany.

Brandt spoke to newsmen after a meeting with Free Democrat leaders to see if the two parties can put together a governing coalition.

He said the meeting dealt with economic and financial matters. Apparently no agreement was reached on these. The two parties have long agreed on the points which Brandt cited.

Free Democrat party leader Erich Mende agreed with Brandt that the talks were sustained by a will to form a government. Mende stressed, however, that the two parties have not reached an agreement.

The meeting was the second between the two parties in the current interparty coalition talks. Another one is scheduled for Friday.

If the Free Democrats and the Social Democrats form the next government, Brandt probably will succeed Ludwig Erhard as chancellor.

Mende's party has been chastened by two recent defeats in state elections and should be eager for an accord. But it can offer Brandt only enough votes in the Bundestag to give him two more than the absolute majority needed for election. Many German politicians think this is too small a margin to run the country, especially since there are conservative Democrats who dislike the idea of working with Social Democrats.

Yet the Free Democrats furnish Brandt's party with a major chance of getting the top spot. If Brandt makes a deal with the Christian Democrats, who control 245 votes to 202 for his own party, he will probably have to take a smaller job.

seem premature, but I plan to recommend to the Park Board to have the Liberty Park lagoon filled in. The only water it receives is surface water, it is nasty and dirty and in the summer breeds mosquitos. The lagoon has become unsightly and in dire need of expensive repairs. It has been years since anything has been done toward its upkeep. To many people this may come as a shock," the mayor concluded.

Those young people who have in the past been able to get by with creating disturbances in the public and private schools — especially those who have dropped out of school but return to create such disturbances — will find the going rough. The City Council passed an ordinance which prohibits such acts and the guilty person or persons can now be arrested and get fines of $5 to $100 or up to ninety days in the city jail or both a fine and jail sentence.

A request of the Yellow Cab Co., for the right to have a taxi cab office on Ohio, somewhere between Main and Fourth Streets, and removal of four or five parking meter spaces was denied by the Council. Councilman George Dugan, under Printing and Ordinances, reported the Council had made a study of the request and found that such a taxi cab business cannot be located in a congested area and the committee felt this was a congested area and recommended it to be denied. The vote was unanimous.

The Planning and Zoning Commission approved a request of Dr. Allen L. Lowe to rezone property from Magnolia to 16th Street on Grand Ave. from R-1 to C-1. The Council accepted the recommendation and ordered an ordinance be drawn.

A resolution of the Planning and Zoning Commission in effect told of its work on a long range program in connection with recommendations of Hare and Hare, and recommended action be taken with regards to public housing especially low income family housing, and primarily for the elderly. After the reading the resolution for further study and action was unanimously accepted.

Councilman Walter Jessee reporting under Streets and Alleys, said signs should be erected at the north end of Heard Street to warn motorists the street intersected with Griessen Road and did not continue on. City Engineer Robert Cunningham was directed to get appropriate signs for the location.

He then called upon Mrs. Johnny Murrell, 1408 South State (Please turn to Page 4, Col. 7)

France Rejects Study Plan; Would Hand China UN Seat

Moscow-Peking Feud Seen In Lukewarm Russian Nod

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—France rejected today a proposed U.N. study of the China problem as unrealistic, and declared that the only way to end the 16-year stalemate is to hand the Chinese seat in the United Nations to the Peking government.

French Ambassador Roger Seydoux told the U.N. General Assembly that the presence of Red China is "politically indispensable" for the world organization if it wishes to search for peace in Asia.

Recorders Missing From Plane

Two Devices Might Have Told Reason For Plane Crash

BERLIN (AP) — A U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board team, investigating last week's crash of a Pan American World Airways jet cargo plane in East Germany, announced today that two recorders that might have disclosed the cause of the accident have not been recovered.

The missing instruments — both designed to survive crashes — record crew and control tower conversation during the plane's last 30 minutes of flight as well as the instrument readings during the entire flight.

The plane, on a mail-carrying run from Frankfurt to West Berlin, crashed a week ago into a hill on a Soviet troop maneuver reservation several miles from its destination.

Soviet authorities placed tight security around the crash site before they turned over the wreckage and bodies of the three American crew members two days later.

Arnold Holstein, head of the investigating team, said that there is still much work to be done and some of the wreckage may have to be sent to the United States for further study.

Services were held here today for two of the crewmen — pilot Walter T. Reavis, 51, of Los Angeles; and copilot Raymond B. Foppe, 52, of Brees, ILL.

About 100 persons attended the ceremony, including many airline pilots.

Ticket Sale For Annual Police Ball

The Annual Sedalia Police-man's Ball is to be held on Friday night, Nov. 25th, at the Liberty Park convention hall. Tickets are now being sold by members of the police department.

Proceeds from this annual affair go toward financing the annual Policeman's Christmas Tree for Sedalia and area children at police headquarters. Over three thousand children were delighted last year on their visit to the police headquarters when about two tons of candy, and over three thousand oranges and apples were passed out to them.

Santa Claus with his police helpers were on hand to enjoy the children.

Any balance left over goes to the police officers to be used to purchase shirts, ties, name plates, and other parts of their uniform not furnished by the City.

Music for the dance will be furnished by Danny Rau and his eight piece dance band, which will be playing from 9 o'clock until midnight.

Offices To Close For Thanksgiving

All administrative offices at city hall and the Pettis County Courthouse, as well as the license bureau, will close for the Thanksgiving Day observance Thursday. Regular office hours will resume on Friday.

Postmaster Maurice Hogan reported all windows would be closed on the lobby at the post office Thursday. There will be no city or rural mail delivery, other than special deliveries. The regular holiday collection schedules will be followed, he said.

In a speech that stressed once more France's split with the United States on the China issue, Seydoux urged support of a resolution sponsored by Albania, Cambodia and nine other Communist and non-aligned nations calling for the expulsion of Nationalist China and the seating of Peking.

He also opposed a U.S.-sponsored resolution to reaffirm previous assembly decisions that the China representation problem is an "important question" and therefore requires a two-thirds majority. As to the proposal for a U.N. study of the China problem, Seydoux noted that such a study already had been made in 1950-1951 and declared: "We all know the results."

"It does not seem to us either opportune or realistic to propose after 16 years of discussions, the creation of an organ having for its mission to explore and study this problem, with the objective of suggesting an equitable and practical solution," he said.

Witness To Kennedy Death Satisfied With Findings

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A survivor of the Kennedy assassination, who nearly 20 years later witnessed another fateful moment in history, said today "I am more than satisfied" with the Warren Commission's findings on the Kennedy assassination.

At the same time he criticized authors of recent books seeking to disprove the commission report, saying, "This is nothing but cheap sensationalism on these people's part."

It was three years ago today that Charles F. Brehm, then 38, stood with his son less than 20 feet from President John F. Kennedy's limousine and saw him slump mortally wounded.

"I was so fascinated in looking at him I did not know anyone else was around. That's why I'm so positive of his actions," Brehm said in an interview.

Brehm was never called before the commission, which concluded that two rifle shots fired by Lee Harvey Oswald from the Texas School Book Depository just west of the downtown Dallas area struck the president. Neither were statements he gave authorities entered as exhibits.

"I see no reason why I should be called. I did not see the man who shot him. I did not see the shots fired. I don't feel that anything I would have said would have had any bearing on his outcome," he said.

Brehm said he knows nothing

Local Fire Chief's Cousin Fights Blaze

Hearnes In Sharp Reply To KC Mayor

Mayor's Statement Brings Blast From State Governor

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes today used a luncheon meeting of the North Kansas City Chamber of Commerce to issue a sharp and extended reply to criticism of the state government by Kansas City Mayor Ilus W. Davis.

In a prepared speech, Hearnes said "Last week I was astounded when the distinguished mayor of Kansas City issued a statement which charged state government with—and I quote from the newspaper story — 'utter failure in the areas of education, health and highways.'"

"He also charged, and I quote his words: 'If you want to talk about schools, hospitals or roads there is no one connected with state government to talk to. . . There is an absolute vacuum in public health.'"

Hearnes said he believed the reason many bond issues for correcting some of these things failed in the last election was the two-thirds majority vote required.

He said he as governor has asked for legislation to change the majority requirement.

To date, he said, Missouri has spent or appropriated $7.2 million toward construction and operation of the Missouri Mental Health Center in Kansas City. The state also has established nine new mental retardation centers and six sheltered workshops along with providing increases for the established state hospitals.

Urban Kansas City has received highway expenditures of more than $168.4 million in the past 20 years, Hearnes said.

He has a special committee studying the need for changes in the public health program.

Disagree On Water Use Ruling

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Some disagreement developed today over the immediate need of any broad law to control water use in Missouri.

State geologist William C. Hayes of Rolla strongly urged that the geological survey's water studies be continued and and "considerable increase in investment be applied to water and related land use planning before enactment of legislation concerning water use and development."

Hayes said Missouri has no water shortage now but may be approaching the point of a shortage of "cheap water."

Clifford L. Summers, director of the State Water Resources Board, disagreed. He said he is convinced some type of regulation is needed and that the state already has the ability to determine proper water use.

He cited rapidly increasing use of water by suburban subdivisions and a growing amount of irrigation requirements.

About 65 representatives of state and federal agencies and interested organizations attended a meeting to discuss a proposed water regulation law. It was drafted by the Water Resources Board.

Summers said there is no way now to know what your water rights are or what the courts may decide. Under the present system of common law the courts have not decided on priorities between competitive water uses.

That is something the water resources board would decide under a permit system provided in the proposed law.

Haysler Poague of Clinton, Mo., board chairman, said Missouri has almost 13,000 miles of major flowing streams — more than any other state.

"This bountiful supply of water," he said, "can either be a curse or a benefit. . . Our main concern must be quality."

Says AMC In Business 'To Stay'

Despite Recent Huge Financial Loss Indications

DETROIT (AP)—Board chairman Robert B. Evans of American Motors said today that despite a $12.6-million loss in fiscal 1966, his company was in the auto business to stay.

"There is absolutely no possibility that AMC might not survive," said the 57-year-old Detroit industrialist-sportsman. "There is no cause for gloom."

AMC's directors reported the loss Monday for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30 and at the same time voted to skip a quarterly dividend for the fifth straight quarter. It was the second largest annual deficit for AMC in its 12-year history.

Evans expressed some disappointment at the way AMC car sales have been going, particularly since the 1967 models were introduced a few weeks ago. But he pointed out "we are not alone — the other auto companies have the same problem in sales slumps and production cutbacks."

"We are victims of the Big Three auto companies. They are not intentionally trying to hurt us but they are competing vigorously and we are caught in the middle of a squeeze as they have tremendous amounts to spend on advertising and promotion."

AMC's gross sales of $870 million and a net loss of $12.6 million for fiscal 1966 were equal to a deficit of 66 cents a share. A year ago, sales hit $990.6 million with profits of $5.3 million equal to 27 cents a share.

Ann Landers

Answers
Your Problems

Dear Readers: In yesterday's column I printed a collection of letters from angry wives who roared, toasted and broiled their "money-hungry, power-mad, ego-centric Wall Street Warriors" for expending their energies on the financial and professional battlefield and leaving nothing for the Home Front.

The letters were in response to a plea from a tired business man. He wrote, "Life is rough in the asphalt jungle. Competition is terrific. When I come home at night after a murderous day at the office my wife gets suspicious if I don't get excited at the sight of her bending over the kitchen sink. She thinks maybe I've got a dame someplace."

Today's letter, in my opinion, is the best and most incisive response I've had. It's for all Wall Street Warriors. Here it is:

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married to a Wall Street Warrior for over 20 years so I feel qualified to speak about the successful business or professional man who willingly (perhaps eagerly) sacrifices his husband-father role in exchange for the exhilaration and the rewards of the Market Place.

These men would not have it any other way. The excitement of the daily battle on the Professional Front or the Money Front is sufficiently ego-warming and stimulating that they don't need anything else to fill their lives.

Because their values are warped (this happened long before marriage) these men lack the true understanding of what a husband-wife relationship ought to be. If his wife becomes cold from waiting, or if a wife resorts to a part-time replacement because she is lonely, the Warrior couldn't care less. He is relieved that he doesn't have to bother with her because he has already discovered younger and more fascinating substitutes in his work or in the cities he visits — on business, of course.

Sex to him has nothing to do with love. He doesn't even try to kid himself, as women often do. Intimacy outside of marriage means fun with no commitment. Moreover it's a great morale booster for the middle-aged male who wonders if he's losing his punch.

The Warrior lives in a world of work, and he adores it. Even his play must in some way be related to his work. A wife and children do not belong in this world. Anyone who cannot contribute to his battle gains is relegated to the periphery.

No one will ever persuade me that a lack of interest in the marriage bed stems from working too hard. This bit of folklore was invented by a man who must have known better. And anyone who regards this problem as a problem of the rich, had better think again. It exists at every economic level. The man who has spent himself elsewhere and is tired when he comes home, got that way because he chose to. After years of loneliness and soul-searching ("Where did I fail?") I confess that I wish I had married another kind of man. I would gladly forego my large home, the cars in the garage, my fine furs and jewelry and the club memberships in exchange for a husband who will attend church with his family, show some interest in our children and be available for the little confidences that can make marriage the special relationship that God intended it to be. Just sign me — LOST: ONE HOMEFRONT. GAINED: MUCH INSIGHT

Assassination, Bad Day For Business, Remembered

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) —Today's third anniversary of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy is also the anniversary of one of the most frantic days ever known in the financial world.

For a long while that day nobody knew what might happen to the value of stocks and bonds or to the U.S. dollar or to confidence in the banks and brokerage houses.

The news on Wall Street was bad just prior to the assassination. A couple of days earlier two prominent firms had been suspended from the New York Stock Exchange in the great salad oil swindle.

This, in itself, was a crisis. Millions of dollars in salad oil had "disappeared" and prominent brokers were left holding worthless pieces of paper. Many investors had lost confidence in the market.

In this mood a big advisory service unwittingly forecast events by advertising that day: "Violent swing ahead?"

The assassination news hit financial circles in the East while many people were still at lunch. Rushing to their offices, many brokers were swamped with orders and dumped billions of dollars of stock.

It is sometimes misleading to estimate paper losses, but share values did drop nearly $11 billion. American Telephone & Telegraph, for example, fell $6 a share. Some specialists, committed to maintaining an orderly market, failed to do so.

Confusion became compounded. The New York Stock Exchange shut its doors at 2:07, the first time in 30 years it had closed for an emergency. So great was the surge of orders already in that activity continued for another 43 minutes.

Three minutes after the Big Board announced its closing, the American Exchange did also. The Montreal, Toronto, Midwest and Pacific Coast exchanges followed. The Securities & Exchange Commission asked a suspension of all other trading.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank hurriedly called a meeting of money men, including commercial and investment bankers, insurance companies, stock officials and government securities dealers.

Reserve officers assured all that they had ample power to deal with the situation. They said they were in close cooperation with other banks, in close contact with central banks in other nations. If the dollar weakened they would support it.

The value of the dollar that afternoon remained strong and the Federal Reserve Bank here issued a statement saying, "There is no need for special action in the financial markets."

Since it was Friday, all financial activity ceased for the weekend.

Most institutions also remained closed Monday. Economists advised during the weekend that there would be a short period of uncertainty. Brokerage houses offered the obvious advice: "Don't panic."

Unable to forecast, financial men and economists — and perhaps the majority of the American people — assured themselves that, after all, we are the richest and most powerful nation in the world.

Conference On Draft Wants Liberal Rules

YELLOW SPRINGS, Ohio (AP) — A college-sponsored conference on the Selective Service System adopted a resolution calling for a more liberal definition of a conscientious objector after three students walked out in protest.

One of those who walked out, Frank Shaffer, a student at Lawrence University in Appleton, Wis., said the proposed change would "allow a person to be (draft) exempt if he didn't want to serve in a particular war."

Two Yale students joined Shaffer of Phoenix, Ariz., in the protest Sunday during the final day of the conference sponsored by Antioch College.

The proposal asks that a man be exempted as a conscientious objector if he has personal philosophical or moral objections to a war.

"In our society we just can't allow a person to decide which war he will serve in," Shaffer said.

The conference, attended by students, teachers and administrators from about 40 colleges, was called "extremely successful" by the president of Antioch. The delegates acted as individuals, not as representatives of their schools.

But Shaffer and Yale students Lanny Davis of Jersey City, N.J., and John Rothchild of St. Petersburg, Fla., said one reason for their walkout was that they could not commit their schools to the actions of the conference. Davis and Rothchild charged that the delegates did not comprise "a representative body of the academic community."

The three students who left early said most of the approved proposals were aimed at abolishing the current Selective Service System instead of reforming it.

No Dog Communion, Will Quit the Church

HALBERTON, England (AP) — A 76-year-old widow who takes her dog to church every Sunday said today if the dog is prevented from taking Communion with her she will stop going to church.

"My little dog Pip means everything to me," said Florence Cox. "She's all I've got. When I take Communion I give her a bit of the wafer and a little wine on my finger."

"No one has ever said this is wrong, and I see no harm in it. But if they stop me I shall stop attending church."

The vicar, the Rev. Arthur Jones of St. Andrew's church said: "I don't go along with passing consecrated wafers or wine to a dog, and I do not think anyone else would."

One who does not approve is the vicar's superior, the Bishop of Exeter, Dr. Robert Mortimer.

"I'm very opposed to this," said the bishop. "I shall speak to the vicar about it." Commenting, the London Sun said: "Whatever theological arguments are put forward about the place of dogs in

Man Reciprocates; Signature For Sketch

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—C. B. Edwards, 82, draws pictures of presidents in exchange for their autographs.

He said he long ago realized that famous people are hard to reach so he devised his own system of addressing letters.

He draws a sketch of the famous addressee on the envelope along with the words "To . . . U. S. A."

He started this when Woodrow Wilson was president and has a signature from several presidents since that time. Wilson didn't respond with a signature. "I don't recollect asking him for one," Edwards said.

Presidential signatures he has received in response to such letters include Theodore Roosevelt, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harry S. Truman, Dwight Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson.

Also among his famous name autographs are Jacqueline Kennedy and Douglas MacArthur. "It has been a novel way of collecting signatures," he said. "I get the signature and they get the sketch to put in their collections."

"We both are happy."

Muddled Mother At Mini-Mod Marriage

DETROIT (AP) — "This is not exactly the wedding I had planned for my daughter," said the mother of the bride.

Joined in marriage in a mod wedding ceremony Sunday at the Michigan State Fairgrounds were Randy Rossi, 19, an unemployed go-go dancer, and Gary Norris, 25, an unemployed artist.

The bride wore a thigh-high, minigown that reached eight inches above the knee. She had matching white satin boots which reached seven inches above the knee.

The bridegroom wore a five-button, plaid suit with a cowboy belt and a six-inch-wide tie.

Billed as the nation's first mod wedding, the affair included:

—A bearded youth banging on the roof of a dilapidated car with a sledge hammer.

—A youth slithering across the stage using a bullwhip and two high-powered flashlights for props while performing an alleged dance.

A crowd of about 4,500 attended the half-hour ceremony, listening to a rock 'n' roll group.

Immigrant Kills Swans Mistaken For Geese

SOMERS, N.Y. (AP) — The family of five swans on Muscott Reservoir here — which had been a popular tourist attraction — were killed one by one Sunday by a hunter.

The pen swan, cob and their three cygnets were killed by a man who had rented a rowboat to go out and shoot some food on the reservoir in Westchester County, state police said.

Romuald Sicinski, 38, a Polish alien in this country since 1959, was taken into custody as the illegal hunter.

At his home, he told a newsman: "I didn't know I was breaking the law. They looked just like geese to me and I have a goose-shooting license. I just wanted to celebrate Thanksgiving with a real American dinner. I didn't know they were swans."

Bob Kennedy Political Position

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three years after the assassination of his presidential brother, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy is riding an uncertain crest of political popularity.

Since the Dallas tragedy, the New York senator has carved out for himself an ambivalent political position in which he stands both with and against President Johnson.

That this is leading him toward an eventual bid for the presidency few are willing to deny. But the timing and circumstances for any such bid apparently remain uncertain quantities to the senator himself.

Kennedy is on record as saying he expects to support Johnson for re-election in 1968, that he will not seek the vice-presidential job now held by Hubert H. Humphrey and that he expects to bid for re-election to the Senate in 1970.

Taken at face value, this leaves only one obscure alternative for entry into the lists before 1972 — the bare possibility that President Johnson might not seek re-election two years from now. The Kennedys, it might be noted, overlook few possibilities.

While the current polls point to Kennedy, who was 41 last Sunday, as possibly the most popular individual Democrat, such popularity may need a great deal of bolstering to keep its flag flying high as the years tend to dissipate the wave of sympathy flowing toward him because of his brother's murder.

As politicians view his future, Kennedy will have to continue to chisel out individual positions on the major issues of the day.

This is a politically delicate process. It does not allow many casual mistakes such as his off-the-cuff observation at Berkeley, Calif., last month that he doesn't believe the people of South Viet Nam want Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

Critics immediately accused Kennedy of trying to undercut Johnson at a critical point.

Although Kennedy has become something of a hero to Democratic liberals because of his dissent to Johnson policies, the New York senator has been careful to limit his suggestions primarily to calls for wider efforts to gain peace in Asia.

How He Looks Essential To A Politician

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This month's elections, says a top-flight movie makeup man, confirmed the new rule for politicians: What you look like is more important than what you stand for.

Frank Westmore, member of the famed family of Hollywood makeup artists, cited the victories in major elections of vigorous, young-looking candidates: California's Ronald Reagan, Illinois' Charles Percy, Oregon's Mark Hatfield, etc.

"This is the heritage of John F. Kennedy, who brought the nation's attention to the young look," argue Westmore. "The Kennedy influence and the use of television for campaigning has completely altered politics in this country."

"It's the women who have brought this about. They vote largely on a candidate's appearance, and they will naturally favor a handsome, clean-cut man over an older, less appealing one. That's why Robert Taft could never have been elected president: He looked too much like a little old schoolteacher."

What actors have learned about presenting themselves to the public can be adopted by politicians, he declares — "and by businessmen, too, because older men are constantly being pressed by younger, more appealing men in business."

Westmore's primary advice: Look to your hair, men.

"The Kennedys have proved how hair can do wonders for a politician's image," he remarked. "Nowadays every politician should have his hair styled to bring out the best in his appearance."

For instance, Richard Nixon. His problem is the wide jaw. That line could be softened if he would lower his sideburns a quarter of an inch or so and build out the hair on the side of his head."

This matter of hair styling for men is not as fancy-dandy as it sounds at first. Westmore reported that the nation's barbers are now coming around to what he and other makeup artists have long been doing for actors: fitting the hair to the individual head.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — One of India's leading Hindu holy men, Jagatguru Shankaracharya, was arrested by police today in an attempt to end his fast protesting the slaughter of cows.

The Jagatguru began his fast Sunday, vowing not to eat until the government imposes a ban against slaughter of cows, which are considered holy by Hindus. Such a ban already is in effect in 11 of the 17 states.

The Jagatguru was on the speakers' platform Nov. 7 when a Hindu demonstration for the ban touched off the worst rioting in New Delhi since the post-independence communal riots of 1947. Eight persons were killed and 41 injured. Home Minister G.L. Nanda was forced to resign.

Air Strike

Backseat Ride Proves Attacking Force of Fighter

MEKONG DELTA, South Viet Nam (AP) — Humming "When the Saints Go Marching In," the blue-helmeted pilot pointed his blunt-nosed F100F Super Sabre jet toward a patch of trees fringing a brown canal.

Maj. Swart Nelson of Phoenix, Ariz., was approaching the climax of his 230th combat mission in a relaxed mood.

A voice rasped in his radio earphones. Nelson stopped humming.

"Your target is a bunch of hooches (thatched shelters) along that finger of water, 55 meters (yards) short of the smoke," said the forward air controller flying a small prop plane several thousand feet below the oncoming wedge of three Super Sabres. "We think it is a VC base camp."

The spotter had fired a rocket to mark the target. White smoke spiraled up from a huddle of dun-colored shacks crowding a small stream.

"Here we go," Nelson called over the intercom to the hitchhiking newsmen in the seat behind him.

He shoved the stick forward, and the F100 dived.

Two hours earlier the three pilots had met in the ready room of the 531st Tactical Fighter Squadron at Bien Hoa air base, some 150 miles to the northeast.

Dressed in gray flight suits, the pilots reviewed their battle plan and the method they would use to attack the target for the day.

Everything was matter of parent canopy of Ramrod 3, Nelson's two-seater.

"This is a nice little war," mused the 44-year-old Nelson. "Down here, we don't get any air opposition."

"We may run into some ground fire, but we'll be all right unless there's a lucky hit on a vital place."

Just then, the target area came into view — and the mood changed abruptly.

The Super Sabres drove home their attack in a pinwheel pattern.

The flight leader went in first, zooming low over the village and clobbering it with fiery napalm.

The second jet followed in a long, looping arc which brought him on target from a different quarter.

Santa Can't Land In Airportless Town

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — Santa Claus, says the City Council, is neither a public official nor a foreign power. So he can't land in Clifton.

A department store (W.T. Grant Co.) had applied for permission to land Santa by helicopter at a shopping plaza Friday to launch the Christmas shopping season.

But an ordinance forbids flying machines from landing in Clifton's airportless 12 square miles. The two exceptions are public officials and foreign powers.

"We love Santa Claus in Clifton," said a councilman. "We welcome him by sea, land ... any way but by air."

Thanksgiving Day Dinner In Tipton

The 26th annual Thanksgiving Day turkey dinner, supper festival and dance, is to be held Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 24, at St. Andrew's Catholic Church, Tipton.

Dinner, served family style, will be from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and supper from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Ham, turkey, beef and chicken, with all the accompaniments, will be included in the meal.

There will be stands, concessions, and a dance that evening.

for the sky, Nelson began his run.

Down...down...down. The speed built up to 500 miles an hour. With the speed and the steep descent came sharply increasing forces of gravity.

The newsmen felt as though an iron bar was being pressed down on his head and shoulders. He was bent almost double.

Breathing was a major effort, despite oxygen filling his mask.

The green trees and the bamboo huts grew bigger and bigger. The gravity forces mounted to give times normal.

Suddenly, there was a thump from the underside of the plane. One of Nelson's 500-pound bombs was away, slanting toward the huts.

Nelson pulled back on the stick and the jet screamed toward the clouds.

Looking back over one shoulder, the newsmen could see billows of dirty gray smoke and columns of flame rising from the huts.

Twice more, the jets raked the village.

Then they swung northward, as though headed for home, and buried themselves in a looming cloud bank.

But on the other side of the cloud, the F100s turned back and tore in on the village from a new direction.

This time, the twin 20mm cannon under the fuselage coughed dryly, sending streams of blue shells into the smoking target.

After four strafing runs the flight leader radioed: "Let's go home."

The controller chimed in with his assessment of the strike: "Four structures destroyed, seven damaged. Nice going."

Nielson Rates TV Specials Top of List

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Perry Como, back on NBC Monday night with the first of his occasional specials, is still the same relaxed fellow with the pleasant voice and the nice manner. But the show seems to lack its old style and pace. It ambled when it should have moved briskly. Neither the sets nor the use of color was up to the standards to which we have become accustomed.

Fortunately Como had two engaging guest stars to help out. Angela Lansbury made her first television appearance as a musical comedy star, singing and dancing. Bob Newhart had one very funny monologue, but his sketch with Como was decidedly on the anemic side.

All in all, it was a rather perfunctory hour of mild entertainment.

NBC sprinted back to the lead in the national Nielsen ratings in the report released Monday. CBS dropped back into second place. The averages for the two weeks ending Nov. 6 were NBC, 19.4; CBS, 18.3, and ABC, 16.7.

One interesting aspect of the new list was the strong showing of some special programs. Four made the top 10 and CBS' half-hour Halloween special, "It's the Great Pumpkin, Charlie Brown," a cartoon show, actually tied NBC's mighty "Bonanza" for top position. CBS' "Lucy in London" was next followed by the weekly Red Skelton show on the same network.

Other programs in the top 10 were CBS' Lucy Show, NBC's Ice Follies, tied with CBS' Jackie Gleason Show, CBS' Green Acres, ABC's Alice Through the Looking Glass, and CBS' Andy Griffith Show.

Two shows popular in other seasons are faring less well this year. ABC's "The Fugitive" wound up in the lower third of the Nielsen list — probably because of tough competition from NBC's movie reruns. "Gilligan's Island," which was a hit in a Thursday night time period, has dropped far down the list since CBS moved it to Monday nights.

Neither "Batman" nor "Peyton Place" is doing as well as last season.

Thanks for All That We Have

Proclamations of Mayors, Governors and Presidents are as commonplace as special weeks which they are designed to promote. Their phraseology usually takes the formal approach by use of too many, therefore, whereas, be it resolved and done, which can make tiresome reading.

So it is refreshing to peruse the introductory to a proclamation which has more substance than the therefore, whereas, be it resolved. This one is by the President of the United States, Lyndon B. Johnson. It is considered of such merit by the Sedalia-Pettis County Ministers Association that a request is made for republication in part from editorial comment in the November 9 issue of the Christian Century, as follows:

— o —

"They came in tiny wooden ships. On an unknown and alien shore, they planted and built, settled and survived. Then they gave solemn thanks to God for His goodness and bounty. America, well over 300 years ago, had its first Thanksgiving Day.

"For many years your Presidents have had the opportunity to proclaim Thanksgiving Day, to address themselves to the American people to remind us of the blessings we enjoy and thanks that we owe.

"If we consider the fervor with which those colonists in Virginia and Massachusetts gave thanks, when they had so little, we are taught how much deeper should our thanks be—when we have so much.

"Never, in all the hundreds of Thanksgiving Days, has our nation possessed a greater abundance, not only of material things but of the precious intangibles that make life worth living.

"Never have we been better fed, better housed, better clothed. Never have so many Americans been earning their own way, and been able to provide their families with the marvelous products of a momentous age.

"Nor has America ever been healthier, nor had more of her children in school and college. Nor have we ever had more time for recreation and refreshment of the spirit, nor more ways and places in which to study and to enrich our lives through the arts.

"Never have our greatest blessings — our freedom — been more widely enjoyed by our people. Nor have we ever been closer to the day when every American will have an equal opportunity and an equal freedom.

"No, we do not yet have peace in the world. Our men are engaged again, as they have been on so many Thanksgivings, on a foreign field fighting for freedom. But we can be thankful for their strength that has always kept our liberty secure. We can be thankful for our science and technology that helps to guard our America.

"Thanks are better spoken by deed rather than word. Therefore, it behooves a grateful America to share its blessings with our brothers abroad, with those who have so little of the abundance that is ours.

"Simple justice and concern for our fellow man require that we be ready to offer what we can of our food, our resources, our talents, our energies, our skills, and our knowledge to help others build a better life for themselves.

"We should thank God that we are able.

Let us, therefore, in this splendid American tradition, thank Him who created us and all that we have. Let us do so with a firm resolve to be worthy of His abundant blessings. Let us assemble in our homes and in our places of worship, each in his own way.

"Let us thank God for the America we are so fortunate to know."

— o —

The Thanksgiving Day service at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening at the First Christian church in Sedalia offers an opportunity for area residents to fulfill the President's proclamation by attendance at this annual community devotion.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

LBJ Picked the Warren Commission

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Today, when a favorite national sport seems to be that of casting doubt on the findings of the Warren Commission, it might be well to investigate how that commission came into being.

I discussed the matter with the new President of the United States 10 days after President Kennedy's tragic death. Suddenly, from having been a background figure in the Kennedy administration, Lyndon Johnson had been thrust into the White House, with all its heavy long-range responsibilities plus its immediate problems of President Kennedy's funeral and the fixing of guilt for his death. The latter had been complicated by Ruby's shooting of Lee Harvey Oswald, which unleashed a flood of rumors that Lee Oswald had been in conspiracy with the Dallas police, the underworld, or the pro-Fascist right wing in Dallas.

The new President was fully aware of this. He also recalled from history the rumors that followed Lincoln's assassination, the vicious report that members of Lincoln's cabinet had conspired to kill him.

So Johnson decided to pick the most unimpeachable, bipartisan board possible to investigate the tragedy of Dallas.

He picked two Republicans — Sen. John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky and Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan. He balanced them against two Democrats — Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia and Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana. He chose a distinguished elder statesman of the Republican party, John J. McCloy, who had served as Assistant Secretary of War, High Commissioner to Germany, head of the Chase Manhattan Bank and head of the World Bank; plus Allen Dulles, ex-Chief of the Central Intelligence Agency.

But these men were willing to serve only if led by a respected, nonpartisan chairman, and to this end the new President approached the Chief Justice.

Warren Demurred

Earl Warren had been three times Republican Governor of California, had run for Vice President on the Dewey ticket in 1948. His credentials were of the highest.

But the Chief Justice was most reluctant. He told President Johnson the Supreme Court had made it a rule that its members must not serve outside the court; that they must concentrate on judicial problems. He recalled criticism of the late Justice Robert Jackson when Jackson took leave of the court to be U. S. prosecutor at the Nuremberg war trials. Justice Frank Murphy had also taken time off from the court for brief World War II military training.

The Chief Justice was adamant in his opposition.

But Lyndon Johnson is a persuasive President. The other members of the Commission would serve only if the Chief Justice was its chairman.

"In 1917," Johnson told the Chief Justice, "you put on a uniform and went out to fight for your country when your country needed you. Your country needs you today."

With tears in his eyes, the Chief Justice accepted.

LBJ Was Target

One development in the investigation of the tragedy which occurred in Dallas three years ago today was the testimony of Mrs. Lee Oswald that her husband had tried to kill Richard Nixon.

She told the Warren Commission how he had read in the newspaper that Vice President Nixon was in town, had strapped his holster and revolver underneath his coat and announced he was going downtown to kill "the Vice President."

Mrs. Oswald, then recently arrived from Russia, didn't know what to do. But when her husband went into the bathroom she locked the door and kept him there for a couple of hours, until his ardor for killing had cooled off.

The incident puzzled the Warren Commission. Checking on the movements of Richard Nixon, they found that he not only was not Vice President at that time, but he was not in Dallas.

On the other hand, Vice President Lyndon Johnson was in Dallas. Commission members concluded, therefore, that it was Lyndon Johnson who had escaped assassination, and that Mrs. Oswald, recalling then Vice President Nixon's visit to Moscow, had confused the two men.

Kennedy Magic Three Years After Death

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three years after his death President John F. Kennedy has become a magic figure to many Americans, perhaps to most. He ranks far higher in popular favor than his successor, President Johnson.

But much of this appraisal has its roots not in intellect but in emotion and personality, plus some other factors in the American society of this time. It is no barometer for what historians will say 50 years from now.

Kennedy had style, one of the most frequently used words in describing him, grace, wit, and a streak of the poetic in his response to people and events.

And he always had enough self-assurance to keep his ego out of sight in a bottle with a cork in it in the hall closet. He didn't let it creep out on him in public.

Perhaps just as important in trying to understand the intensity of the devotion to this man who died so recently was the sense of youth he conveyed — new hope, new starts, new horizons — in a country where far more than half the population is under 50. He was 46 when he died.

Thus dying when and how he did — still young but assassinated.

Poodles Cause Collision

HERGISWIL, Switzerland (AP) — A woman drove into the village drugstore today — right through the window.

"It was my two poodles — they just wouldn't stop fighting," she explained to the druggist and a customer after they had dived behind the counter.

About 95,000 cubic miles of water goes into the air annually with the greatest part — 80,000 cubic miles rising from the oceans.

A Living Memorial

15,000 Come Daily To See Where John Kennedy Lies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sometimes the visitors come in military cadence, or with the quick and happy step of school children, or in the contemplative way of the thoughtful citizen.

They still throng to the grave of John F. Kennedy, assassinated in Dallas, Tex., three years ago today.

By count and estimate more than 16 million persons have climbed the grassy slopes of Arlington National Cemetery to the graves of Kennedy and two of his children.

In the first few weeks there were more than 50,000 a day. Now there are about 15,000 daily, but a pleasant Indian summer or spring day, or a holiday will draw many more thousands.

Visitors often wait an hour or two in line. Not long ago, wreath-laying ceremonies were averaging 15 a day.

A new granite and marble memorial authorized by Congress is nearing completion. The simple grave outlined by a low white picket fence stands today in sharp contrast to the gleaming marble of the new memorial a few feet away.

The new site, to which the bodies of Kennedy and his two children, who died in infancy, will be moved next spring, includes a circular walkway, more than 200 feet across and an inscription wall of granite upon which are engraved quotations from the Kennedy inaugural speech of Jan. 20, 1960.

The eternal flame lighted by Kennedy's widow during the burial service will be moved to the new site and remain a central symbol. The light has gone out on occasion since the burial but the new one to be installed in the memorial has been tested in hurricane - force wind and simulated rain storms.

John Carl Warnecke, the architect who designed the memorial, attempted to keep it as simple as the expenditure of more than $2 million permitted.

A gray slate marker set flush with the ground will identify the president's grave and those of the children — Patrick Bouvier Kennedy and baby girl Kennedy.

The president's marker will be engraved with the words: John Fitzgerald Kennedy, 1917-1963.

The eternal flame may be seen on a clear night from the Lincoln Memorial, perhaps a mile or more across the Potomac River.

In its new location, the grave and the flickering flame will be in a straight line from the Lincoln Memorial to the Custis Lee Mansion at the crest of the hill overlooking the cemetery. The mansion was built in 1802 by George Washington Parke Custis, adopted grandson of President George Washington.

Thousands of mementos have been tossed upon Kennedy's grave in the three years since the assassination. They give some hint of the moods of the people who visit the grave and the emotions that stir them.

A baby's shoe, a religious medal, a scarlet flower, the berets and caps of military men, a torn page from a Bible with a marked passage were part of one day's offerings.

The mementos are gathered daily, packed and sent to the White House.

The great and the famous, kings and emperors, the ordinary and the obscure citizens of the world have been drawn to the grave.

What brings them?

Many motives. A busload of children arrives on its Washington sightseeing tour. They pile out laughing and chattering with cameras dangling on their arms.

A group of nuns makes the walk around the grave, solemn and silent.

A cluster of businessmen, taking time out from a convention, arrives. They talk casually among themselves but stop for a moment in silence.

A woman came to the grave in a heavy downpour of rain. She told a cemetery worker: "I came all the way from Canada to see this grave and no rain is going to stop me now, or anything else."

Another visitor, asked what had drawn him to the grave, said of Kennedy: "He was a man of grace. He died too young, too needlessly. That has haunted me ever since he was killed. I wanted to come and see the place where he is buried."

Most of those coming alone appear thoughtful or sad as they reach the grave.

Accidents And Heroes In Columnist's Mail Today

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

America's highway accident toll now costs more than $1 billion a month in economic losses. Or, $200-plus each year for every U.S. family.

Spurlugs at Las Vegas would be hard put to match the gaudiness of the gambling at Saratoga, N.Y., in its heyday. "Bet-a-million" gates once lost $100,000 on the turn of a single card there, and the famous beauty, Lillian Russell, who cured her morning hiccups with champagne, paraded a spaniel wearing an $1,800 diamond collar.

Fun is where you find it. The puffer fish, which swims in Africa's Congo River, blows itself into the shape of a ball when frightened. So the thrifty natives, after thoroughly scaring the fish into a globe of fear, use it to play soccer.

The year's worst pun: Tony Curtis tells of the girl who stopped going with a guy because she heard he was a "no account bum." It was his bank who said he had no account.

Quotable notables: "The secret of happiness is this: Let your interests be as wide as possible, and let your reactions to the things and persons that interest you be, as far as possible, friendly rather than hostile." — Bertrand Russell.

How thoughtful can a husband get? Well, one fellow sent a swatch of dress fabric to Chris Andrews, president of Triumph cars, and asked if he had a car to match its color. "I want to give it to my wife for Christmas," he explained.

Finding parking spaces for people, not motor cars, may be a major problem of the 21st century. The world population is growing by 8,000 every hour. At this rate earth's inhabitants, who totaled 3.3 billion in 1965, by 1985 may number five billion.

Edible pets: The goldfish which Western peoples raise for pleasure have for centuries been raised by the Chinese for food.

Worth remembering: "Yes, we did produce a near perfect republic. But, will they keep it, or will they, in the enjoyment of plenty, lose the memory of freedom? Material abundance without character is the surest way to destruction." — Thomas Jefferson.

It was George Bernard Shaw who observed, "The secret of being miserable is to have leisure to bother about whether you are happy or not."

American GI's To Eat Well On Holiday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. fighting man in Viet Nam, described as the best fed in American wartime history, will get a hearty dinner of roast turkey with trimmings Thanksgiving Day.

It ought to be enough to make the Viet Cong cry.

In contrast with the Communists' basic diet of rice and fish, American troops in Southeast Asia will be getting a hot holiday meal consisting of:

Shrimp cocktail with crackers.

Turkey with giblet gravy. Bread dressing. Cranberry sauce. Candied sweet potatoes. Mixed vegetables. And assorted relishes, hot rolls with margarine or butter, mincemeat or pumpkin pie, fruit and candy, plus coffee, tea or milk.

This is the Thanksgiving menu laid out for American soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines around the world, including the war theater.

Compare that with the basic fare of the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong of about 1.5 pounds daily of rice, salt, fish and nuoc mam (fish sauce).

Paul R. Ignatius, assistant secretary of defense for installations and logistics, said over 88 per cent of the meals served in Viet Nam are hot meals with fresh meat, vegetables and other fresh food items. Seven per cent are heated canned foods. Only 5 per cent are field combat rations.

He said food is being provided to U.S. troops at a rate of about seven pounds per man per day, including 30 ounces of milk per man.

"I think that without question the troops are being fed better than those in any war in history," Ignatius said.

Auto Workers Laid Off to Get Wage Safeguards

DETROIT (AP) — Auto workers laid off in current industry cutbacks can count on receiving at least 62 per cent of their wages for up to six months.

Even after that, a man with two years' seniority could draw $50 weekly, plus $1.50 a week for each dependent up to four, for six more months.

These were among layoff safeguards written into current contracts in 1964 bargaining between the four top automakers and the United Auto Workers Union. Some within the UAW equate them with a guaranteed annual wage.

None of the manufacturers has indicated how many would be laid off in their inventory balancing shuffle. General Motors announced last week December and January production would be sliced 8.1 per cent.

Ward's Automotive Reports, an industry statistical agency, reported in mid-month that the four top producers were trimming back their planned November production by 58,000 cars.

If General Motors were to slice its hourly rated work force of 430,000 by 8.1 per cent in December and January to match production slowdown, that would result in a cut of 38,700 men.

The layoff backstops are provided by what is known as a "supplemental unemployment benefit fund," or "SUB."

Combined SUB funds now total more than $332 million.

SUB, up to a maximum of $50 weekly, is paid on top of regular state unemployment compensation to assure a worker 62 per cent of his wage for the 26-week limit of government assistance.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics figures the current average weekly wage of auto workers at $135.20.

Will Real Offender Please Stand Up

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Police stopped a man for speeding Monday and asked to see his driver's license.

"He pulled out one," said Patrolman Don Henderson, "and started to hand it to me. Then he said, 'Oh, that ain't me,' and he pulled out another one."

The name on the first driver's license was Eddie Junior Flowe, said the officer, and the name on the second was Isiah Foster.

When Henderson asked for other identification, the man produced light and water bills with the name of John Jeter.

"I just use his name to pay those bills," the motorist told Henderson. "He's been dead several years."

Then the officers took the man to his place of employment and asked the supervisor who he was.

"Oh, that's Clyde Thompson," the officers quoted the supervisor.

So that's the way he's booked:

South Takes Big Share Of Prizes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The South, a reluctant bystander at last Saturday's Poll Bowl, has recouped, as expected, by grabbing the lion's share of college football's post-season prizes.

Five teams from the rugged Southeastern Conference and two powerful Dixie independents accepted bowl bids Monday as all but five berths in the eight major holiday attractions were filled.

This weekend, two Southwest Conference schools are expected to join the field, giving the southland at least nine of the 16 bowl spots.

Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, Florida and Tennessee—all of the SEC—and independents Georgia Tech and Miami nailed bowl assignments Monday while the Pacific 8 Conference pulled a mild surprise by selecting Southern California as the host team in the Rose Bowl.

Purdue and Syracuse had been named to the Rose and Gator Bowls, respectively, over the weekend.

The top game should be the Sugar Bowl confrontation between third-ranked Alabama and fourth-ranked Nebraska.

If Alabama sidesteps an upset in its remaining two regular-season games and the Cornhuskers don't stumble against Oklahoma in their Thanksgiving Day wind-up, the New Orleans classic will offer the only pairings of perfect-record teams.

The game is a rematch of Alabama's 39-28 Orange Bowl triumph over Nebraska last New Year's night.

Georgia Tech, only other unbeaten and untied major team, meets Florida in the Orange Bowl at Miami the night of Jan. 2 after Southern California, the Pacific 8 king, and Purdue, the Big Ten runner-up, tangle in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif.

If Southern Methodist takes the Southwest Conference title by beating Texas Christian Saturday, the Mustangs will entertain Georgia in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas on Dec. 31. Tennessee takes on Syracuse in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., the same day.

Mississippi goes to the Bluebonnet Bowl at Houston on Dec. 17, where it probably will run into Arkansas of the SWC. Miami has filled half the bill at the Dec. 10 Liberty Bowl at Memphis. Berths in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., Dec. 24, are still wide open, with 12 schools in the running.

Southern California's nomination as the West Coast's Rose Bowl representative raised a few eyebrows. UCLA, which beat the Trojans last Saturday but finished one-half game behind them in Pacific 8 play, had been expected to get the call.

12 Teams In NBA Next Year

NEW YORK (AP) — There will be 12 teams in the National Basketball Association next season and 18 in 1970-71.

The expansion move was dictated by a heightened interest from cities desiring an NBA franchise and a professional market survey that revealed growing potential in many new cities for major league basketball.

Commissioner Walter Kennedy said Monday at the league's fall meeting.

The NBA, which expanded to 10 teams this season with the addition of Chicago, will add two more clubs in 1967-68 and two more for each of three seasons after that.

Kennedy listed, in alphabetical order, the cities under consideration for franchises:

Atlanta; Cleveland; Dallas-Fort Worth, Tex.; Houston, Kansas City; Minneapolis, Minn.; New Orleans, La.; Phoenix, Ariz.; Pittsburgh; San Diego, Calif.; Seattle, Wash., and Washington.

"Under primary consideration for the first two franchises are Seattle, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and San Diego," Kennedy said.

In other action Monday, the playoff system was revised.

The first four teams in each of the five-club divisions will be eligible for the playoffs, with the first place team playing the third place team and the second meeting the fourth in best-of-five series. The survivors will then meet in best-of-7 sets, and the division winners will play a best-of-7 for the league championship.

Before the addition of a 10th team, the first three finishers in each division made the playoffs.

USC Named To Play In Rose Bowl

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"Troy Has Fallen—Bring on Purdue" proclaimed the banner at a University of California at Los Angeles rally.

Then down it tumbled. For on Jan. 2, 1967, it will be Southern California—not UCLA—in the Rose Bowl against Purdue.

The Pacific 8, meeting in San Francisco, selected USC Monday to make its 14th trip to nearby Pasadena. Its credentials? A 4-1 championship record in the Pacific 8, a 7-2 mark overall and 19th place on the AP poll.

But the UCLA fans, pointing to their Bruins' 14-7 defeat of USC just last Saturday and their 9-1 overall record and 6th place AP rating, expressed outrage.

Even at USC some partisans were surprised, even though their Trojans bested UCLA's 3-1 conference mark. Said on USC student: "I think everybody here was surprised." Celebrations erupted.

At UCLA, meanwhile, different rallies erupted. Students protested with obscene signs, bonfires and pranks that ended with more than 40 arrests.

But UCLA Coach Tommy Prothro said: "I have no kick coming. There was no way the conference could vote that would please everybody."

Following its usual policy, the conference did not announce the margin in favor of USC.

Trojan Coach John McKay said, "I felt we'd get the vote. I'll admit I was in the minority of the people around us."

McKay explained that the conference usually sends its champion to the Bowl, though its regulations call only for it to send its "most representative team."

Only N. Y. Will Break Up Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Break up the Yankees? Why bother? The old war cry, first heard when Babe Ruth was devastating the American League in 1927, and repeated plaintively through the glory years of Gehrig, DiMaggio and Mantle; Huggins, McCarthy and Stengel, has been forgotten.

New York is Loserville...and if anybody breaks up the Yankees this winter, it likely will be the Yankees themselves.

Baseball's most successful organization is picking up the pieces after the biggest fall since Goliath took the count. The club that dominated the national pastime for four decades has nowhere to go but up.

The Yankees, who won their 29th American League pennant two short years ago, have hit bottom. They have finished in last place for the first time in 54 years...in 10th place for the first time ever.

How it happened, and why, are among the year's jackpot questions.

The deterioration of the Yankee dynasty was a long time coming, and there are ways to explain it. The sudden and total collapse of 1966 appears, at first glance, inexplicable.

New York built a baseball empire in the 1920s with Col. Jacob Ruppert's money and Ed Barrow's savvy; kept its edge in the '30s and '40s with George Weiss's masterminding of the game's most efficient scouting and minor league apparatus...and began losing its grip in the '50s while it was still turning out pennant winners.

Before World War II, a major league team could control an unlimited number of young players, bring them along in its farm system and promote them as the need arose. The Yankees' farm system, organized by Barrow in the early '30s and supervised expertly by his successor, Weiss, was superior to its American League counterparts.

Yankee scouts also were without peer. "Our scouts could go out and sell ball players on the Yankees...even when we were being outbid by other clubs," says Johnny Johnson, the club's current farm director. "We had a lot to offer the boys...World Series shares, the big ball park, a legacy of success."

In the early 1950s, however, a new wave of baseball legislation—aimed at equalizing the power structure—began to take its toll on the Yankees. Limitations were placed on bonuses. Clubs were required to keep bonus players on the major league roster. First-year players who were not carried on the parent roster were exposed to the draft the following year.

Finally, in 1965, competition for prospects had virtually disappeared with the inception of the free agent draft, and a club could exercise outright control of only 40 players—those on the spring roster.

"Actually," says Johnson, "the new rules were designed to create the demise of the Yankees...and they were successful."

Major league expansion in 1961 further diluted the talent available. "All of a sudden there were more clubs in the majors," Johnson says. "With 150 players in each new system, it took some 600 players out of the market."

Meanwhile, baseball lost some of its allure to young athletes and they began looking in other directions.

The Yankees did not capitalize on the stream of Negro and Latin American talent that became available after Branch Rickey and Jackie Robinson broke the color barrier in 1947.

When the Weiss-Stengel era ended in 1960, the Yankees already had begun to come back to the pack. When they were fifth straight pennant, under Yogi Berra in 1964, there was no appreciable difference between them and the second and third place clubs. When they staggered home sixth under Johnny Keane the following year, they knew they were in deep trouble.

The deterioration of the Yankee dynasty was a long time coming, and there are ways to explain it. The sudden and total collapse of 1966 appears, at first glance, inexplicable.

New York built a baseball empire in the 1920s with Col. Jacob Ruppert's money and Ed Barrow's savvy; kept its edge in the '30s and '40s with George Weiss's masterminding of the game's most efficient scouting and minor league apparatus...and began losing its grip in the '50s while it was still turning out pennant winners.

Before World War II, a major league team could control an unlimited number of young players, bring them along in its farm system and promote them as the need arose. The Yankees' farm system, organized by Barrow in the early '30s and supervised expertly by his successor, Weiss, was superior to its American League counterparts.

Yankee scouts also were without peer. "Our scouts could go out and sell ball players on the Yankees...even when we were being outbid by other clubs," says Johnny Johnson, the club's current farm director. "We had a lot to offer the boys...World Series shares, the big ball park, a legacy of success."

In the early 1950s, however, a new wave of baseball legislation—aimed at equalizing the power structure—began to take its toll on the Yankees. Limitations were placed on bonuses. Clubs were required to keep bonus players on the major league roster. First-year players who were not carried on the parent roster were exposed to the draft the following year.

Finally, in 1965, competition for prospects had virtually disappeared with the inception of the free agent draft, and a club could exercise outright control of only 40 players—those on the spring roster.

"Actually," says Johnson, "the new rules were designed to create the demise of the Yankees...and they were successful."

Major league expansion in 1961 further diluted the talent available. "All of a sudden there were more clubs in the majors," Johnson says. "With 150 players in each new system, it took some 600 players out of the market."

Meanwhile, baseball lost some of its allure to young athletes and they began looking in other directions.

The Yankees did not capitalize on the stream of Negro and Latin American talent that became available after Branch Rickey and Jackie Robinson broke the color barrier in 1947.

When the Weiss-Stengel era ended in 1960, the Yankees already had begun to come back to the pack. When they were fifth straight pennant, under Yogi Berra in 1964, there was no appreciable difference between them and the second and third place clubs. When they staggered home sixth under Johnny Keane the following year, they knew they were in deep trouble.

Only N. Y. Will Break Up Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Break up the Yankees? Why bother? The old war cry, first heard when Babe Ruth was devastating the American League in 1927, and repeated plaintively through the glory years of Gehrig, DiMaggio and Mantle; Huggins, McCarthy and Stengel, has been forgotten.

New York is Loserville...and if anybody breaks up the Yankees this winter, it likely will be the Yankees themselves.

Baseball's most successful organization is picking up the pieces after the biggest fall since Goliath took the count. The club that dominated the national pastime for four decades has nowhere to go but up.

The Yankees, who won their 29th American League pennant two short years ago, have hit bottom. They have finished in last place for the first time in 54 years...in 10th place for the first time ever.

How it happened, and why, are among the year's jackpot questions.

Kentucky Favored To Win Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Kentucky, runner-up to Texas Western for the national collegiate basketball championship last season, once more is favored to win the Southeastern Conference in the college dribble season opening next week.

Western Kentucky and Cincinnati similarly are favored to repeat in the Ohio Valley and Missouri Valley Conferences, but Michigan and Kansas may be ousted as champions in the Big Ten and the Big Eight, respectively.

Michigan State and Illinois are expected to be the main contenders in the Big Ten. Nebraska is favored in the Big Eight. Elsewhere in the basketball talent-rich Midwest, Miami of Ohio likely will retain the Mid-American crown with Chicago Loyola and Oklahoma City again the best of the independents.

Adolph Rupp, Kentucky coach, has warned, "We aren't going to be as good as we were last year" when his Wildcats won 27 and lost only twice.

Still Kentucky has lost only Tom Kron and Larry Conley from last season. All-America Louie Dampier is back along with Pat Riley, Thad Jaracz, Bob Tallent, Tommy Porter and Cliff Berger. That means Vanderbilt, Florida, Tennessee and Mississippi State, expected to be strong contenders in the SEC, again will find Kentucky tough to handle.

Western Kentucky, which finished 10th in the final Associated Press poll last season, has back Clem Haskins and Dwight Smith and is expected to duplicate its 25-3 record of a year ago. Cincinnati has back John Howard, Dean Foster and Mike Rolf giving the Bearcats an edge over Louisville, Bradley, Wichita and St. Louis in the Missouri Valley.

Michigan State, second to Michigan by only one game last year, has back Matt Aitch and John Bailey.

Nebraska, the only team to beat Kansas in league play last year, again will have Nate Branch, Tom Baack and Stuart Lantz.

Barry helps Whip Cardinals, 134-117

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

San Francisco's Rick Barry, held to one point in first quarter, scored 15 in each of the next two periods and 11 in the last for a total of 42 as San Francisco trounced St. Louis 134-117 at Nashville, Tenn., Monday night. It was the only National Basketball Association action.

Barry, the NBA scoring leader who entered the game with a 37.2 average, got plenty of help from Nate Thurmond and Al Attles, each scoring 26 points.

Mikita Has Lead In NHL's Scoring Race

NEW YORK (AP) — Stan Mikita, the master playmaker in Chicago's National Hockey League-leading attack, has opened a five-point lead in the individual scoring race.

Mikita picked up a goal and four assists in three games last week for a total of 21 points. Norm Ullman of Detroit, who shared the lead with Mikita at 16 points a week ago, was blanked in two starts but still holds a two-point edge over third-place Rod Gilbert of New York, according to official NHL statistics released today.

Taylor First AFL Player Past 1,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Otis Taylor, Kansas City's fleet flanker, has become the first player in the American Football League this season to pass the 1,000-yard mark in his speciality.

Taylor, a 6-foot-2, 211-pound product of Prairie View in his second pro season, grabbed nine passes for 133 yards against Boston Sunday and finished the day with 48 catches over-all for 1,058 yards.

Thanks Trojans Will Be Busy Saturday

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Southern California assistant coach Joe Margucci believes the Trojans will be a mighty busy football team Saturday.

He scouted Notre Dame, USC's opponent, last weekend when the Irish played Michigan State to a 10-10 tie.

"I tell you their size scares you," he said. "The Irish are so big they outclass the normal college team in size alone."

Robert Docking Against Kan. As Nuclear Dump

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—Robert Docking, governor-elect, says he's not much interested in making Kansas "a nuclear garbage dump."

Docking made his remark after being told at a budget hearing Monday about how a piece of radioactive cobalt was stuck in a reactor at the University of Kansas laboratory nearly two years.

University scientists were unable to remove the cobalt, said Charles McAtee, attorney and chairman of the Kansas Nuclear Energy Advisory Council.

The U.S. Public Health Service urged the laboratory to "get the material out and disposed of as quickly as possible because they said it was beginning to leak radioactivity into the surrounding area," McAtee said.

He told how a team of specialists from New York finally got the cobalt out. It was hauled to a disposal place in Kentucky.

McAtee, testifying on behalf of a $5,000 appropriation for the council, told the story to emphasize the need for a nuclear waste disposal site in the Midwest.

He said current experiments at an old salt mine near Lyons, Kan., could lead to development of a disposal place there.

Docking said there is apprehension in the Lyons area.

"There's been a lot of talk about Kansas becoming a nuclear waste garbage dump," Docking said. "I know there are a lot of problems connected with such operations and I'm not going to be very interested in anything like that unless you can assure me that nobody in Kansas is going to suffer as a result of it."

Jerome Halperin of the U.S. Public Health Service, told Docking the trouble with the cobalt at KU did not endanger students on the campus, but might eventually have affected two or three graduate students who were working on the project.

K. C. Chiefs Hold Offensive Lead

NEW YORK (AP) — Kansas City, doing most of its traveling along the ground, continues to hold a wide edge in total offense in the American Football League.

Statistics released by the AFL today show the Chiefs averaging 361.1 yards per game—a shade less than 33 yards per game more than second place Buffalo. Veteran Bert Coan and rookie Mike Garrett carry the brunt of the Kansas City running game, which is averaging 151.3 yards per game—almost 14 more than second-place Boston.

Oakland leads the league in total defense, yielding 250.3 yards per game, 1.4 yards less than New York.

Sandra Haynie Is Narrowing The Gap

CINCINNATI (AP) — Sandra Haynie continued to close in on Kathy Whitworth's total of money winnings last week although neither won a tournament.

Uneasy Peace

Many Reminders of War Close At Hand In Korea

DEMILITARIZED ZONE, South Korea (AP) — The war and the fighting are in Viet Nam now and it's only "combat status" for the American soldier who patrols an uneasy Korean peace in the aftermath of a war that ended more than 13 years ago.

In Viet Nam, U.S. fighting men stand up to sweaty heat, flooded rice paddies, leech-filled streams and a wily, crafty foe. Bullets fly and mortar rounds whisper in daily; and much blood is shed. In Korea, U.S. troops are more apt to face biting cold and the fearsome noises of night; but blood still is shed.

And reminders of war are close at hand along the 151-mile demilitarized zone that separates North and South Korea:

— The chicken wire stretched in frames over dug-in guard posts to prevent grenades from being lobbed in on the guards.

— The training each man at the zone gets in how to set an ambush for North Korean infiltrators and how to avoid ambush himself.

And there was a grim reminder on Nov. 2 when a North Korean ambush killed six U.S. soldiers and a Korean on routine patrol just south of the armstice line in South Korea. It was the latest in a series of incidents that began along the line Oct. 15.

The armistice ending the Korean War was signed on July 27, 1953, and it created a 2½-mile wide no man's land as a basis for policing the peace. The zone is supposed to be free of armed activity and the armistice commission meets periodically in Panmunjom to talk fruitlessly about violations of the zone.

The rules governing activity at the zone are complex and American soldiers carry small cards listing them.

Largely an empty strip of land, the zone winds over hills and mountains, down into long overgrown rice paddies and across battlefields where the debris of war is visible. U.S. servicemen, who number about 50,000 in Korea, patrol an 18½-mile sector of the line, and South Koreans man the remainder.

The American manning the patrols along the zone is 19 to 22 years old and he usually has had 4½ months of basic and advance infantry training before arriving in Korea. More often than not, he's a draftee.

If the soldier is assigned "up north," beyond the Imjin River to the American sector of the demilitarized zone, he gets five days of special training on setting ambushes and countering enemy ambushes.

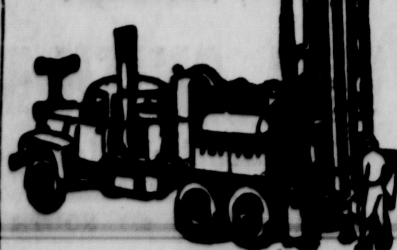

There are three battalions on the front in the American-occupied sector. Once he gets "up north," the soldier finds another world from "down there, south of the river" where quarters are good and the duty hours are from 9 to 5, five days a week.

A soldier north of the Imjin in a typical infantry company spends a week of guard post duty inside the zone, a week of patrol duty along the zone and a week in company training during a three-week cycle.

With the snow of winter, concealment for North Korean infiltrators becomes more difficult and hostile incidents fall off. But policing the truce continues — mostly dull, without glamor and sometimes dangerous.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is studying an urgent Jordanian request for new arms aid.

The State Department said Monday night that the request was general in nature, and that a detailed armaments request apparently would be sent later, depending on U.S. reaction.

Weekend press reports from Jordan quoted Prime Minister Wasfi as saying in the wake of an Oct. 13 retaliatory attack by Israel that Jordan's first priority now was to strengthen its air force.

The United States has previously furnished tanks and aircraft to Jordan. It also provides financial assistance to help Jordan pay for its military establishment.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans, their congressional minorities bolstered, are lining up their legislative targets.

These aspects of antipoverty, urban renewal and financing plans were singled out Monday by GOP leaders:

—Antipoverty: Rep. Charles E. Goodell of New York, chairman of the House Republican Planning and Research Committee, said Republicans want to reduce what he called "wasteful bureaucratic slippage." He said some activities should be transferred to regular government departments.

—Urban renewal: Goodell said most Republicans want to give more responsibility to the states. He criticized President Johnson's demonstration cities program and suggested instead federal grants-in-aid to states for meeting problems of cities and suburbs.

—Financing: Rep. Gerald R. Ford, House Republican leader, asked repeal of a 1966 law designed to help the government raise $4.2 billion outside normal channels by selling participation rights in government-held loans. Ford said the act helped force up interest rates.

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Because the missus dashed off a note to the commander in chief, the war in Viet Nam can get along a few more days without Pfc. George Schmidt's help and he will be able to be with her on their fourth wedding anniversary Wednesday and on Thanksgiving Day.

Schmidt had been scheduled to leave home today for Viet Nam.

His wife, Riva, didn't know what commanding officer to contact to make a plea for extension of his leave. So she wrote to Commander in Chief Lyndon B. Johnson.

The result: Schmidt received two telegrams, granting and confirming an extension. He was ordered to leave Sunday for Oakland, Calif., from where he will be flown to Viet Nam.

Computer Landings Being Developed

ABOARD USS AMERICA (AP) — The jet fighter-bomber touched down on the aircraft carrier's landing deck, snagged a cable and screeched to a sudden stop — a noisy but perfect landing. The pilot had nothing to do with it.

The F4 combat plane was landed safely Monday on the America, the nation's newest flattop, by a complex system of radar and computers operated by a control center deep inside the ship.

The revolutionary, "Look ma, no hands" concept is being developed in a hurry by the Navy, seeking to reduce landing accidents at night and in foul weather during Southeast Asia operations.

The system, expected to undergo final operational tests next spring, has a secondary purpose: to make it easier for carrier pilots to qualify for night flying and thus ease the growing shortage of carrier attack pilots in Viet Nam.

Known as the All-Weather Carrier Landing System — ACLS — it works this way:

As the pilot begins his approach to the carrier, radar and computers provide precise data on the plane's position. This, along with data on the roll, pitch and yaw of the landing deck, is relayed to a computer that calculates the movement of the carrier and the desired position of the plane as it begins its descent and actually lands.

The computer sends precise commands to the plane, which are converted into signals that drive the automatic pilot for a safe "hands off" landing.

The Navy's first public demonstration of the landing system was made relatively simple Monday by the calm seas and clear skies of the Atlantic Ocean.
